

Nixon, McG. clash Tuesday as '72 campaign draws to climax

General elections will be held tomorrow, Tuesday, November 7th. Ten ballot measures will be voted on as well as national and state candidates for office.

There are several ballot measures over which there is a great amount of controversy. One of these is Measure No. 2 which proposes that the state legislature be permitted to set the qualifications for the office of sheriff. The 1971 Oregon legislature passed an act which set qualifications for the office as being "not less than 21 years of age, be certified or eligible for certification by the Board of Police Standards and Training, and have at least four years experience in law enforcement or two years post-high school education or any combination of experience and education for at least four years." This act would go into effect only if Measure No. 2 was passed.

Supporters of Measure No. 2 state that since the office of sheriff is so vital for the safety and welfare of the public, there should be special qualifications set. They say that, as it is now, a person with no prior knowledge could become the chief law enforcement officer of a county.

The opposition says that with this law enacted, the position of sheriff would be open for legislative abuse; they could change the requirements for the office every legislative session. Also, they believe that, in practice, sheriffs who do not possess adequate backgrounds are not elected and those elected who do not perform, are not re-elected.

Ballot Measure No. 4 proposes changes in the state constitution regarding religious schools. The constitution now states that no state money may be used for the benefit of any religious or theological institution or for the payment of any religious services in either house of the Legislative Assembly. The proposed amendment which would replace this section of the constitution reads: "The Legislative Assembly shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting free exercise thereof." The adoption of this amendment would make it possible for parochial schools to obtain free state-owned textbooks and possibly other benefits from the state.

Measure No. 9 is a proposed amendment which would prohibit taxing property for revenue for grade schools, high schools, and community colleges. If passed, this amendment would force other laws to be made by July 1, 1973 to raise and distribute money for school support from other means.

Supporters of this bill say that this is the only realistic way to cut property taxes and that property tax is an unfair tax for school support as it does not take into consideration ability to pay or benefits received. They say this amendment will "allow" the people to decide on a more fair system of taxation.

Opponents of the measure state that good and fair tax reforms do not come as a result of a financial crisis which this amendment would cause. They claim that two-thirds of the property tax is now paid by businesses and owners of income-producing property and that this amendment would shift this tax burden from businesses to individuals.

More about these and other ballot measures can be found in your Voters' Pamphlet.

For president of the United States, there are the two candidates everyone has heard about and there is also a third—John G. Schmitz who is a member of the American Independent Party. Mr. Schmitz believes that those who work should live better than those who won't and that the Federal government should stop giving people's money away and get out of the welfare business.

He is opposed to treaties and other foreign commitments which compromise our national sovereignty and security and believes we should withdraw from the United Nations. He is also opposed to getting in wars we don't intend to win, forced bussing, and restricting an individual's right to bear arms. John Schmitz believes that the American people are tired of "too much government."

The senatorial race between Republican, Mark Hatfield and Democrat, Wayne Morse, should prove to be a very interesting and close one. Both are highly experienced and qualified politicians.

Another interesting race is that of Secretary of State. Democrat, Beulah Hand's main goal, if elected, is to abolish the office of Secretary of State. She believes that with the recent lessening of policy making and administrative decisions made by the office that the position is no longer necessary. Mrs. Hand claims that her total campaign spending in the primary was $10.00 as compared to Clay Myers' $25,333.31.

The incumbent Secretary of State, Clay Myers stands on his record and says he wishes to insure an orderly growth in Oregon. He is the only Republican candidate endorsed by the Oregon AFL-CIO.

On the back of your Voters' Pamphlet and on your Voters' Registration Card is your precinct number. These range from 0001 to 0108 in Linn County and from 0101 to 0142 in Benton County. Your precinct number can be found on page 3.

Dr. Jeron King Criswell will be gazing into your future when he holds a convocation in the Student Center, Wednesday the 8th of November. Will you be rich? Will you be poor? Will you fall down? Will you be sore? Come and See!

Criswell predicts at Linn-Benton this Wednesday

Are you interested in knowing about your future? Are you interested in learning how to use your ESP? If the answer is yes, the place for you to be on November 8 at 10 a.m. is in the Center Commons where you can see and hear "Criswell Predicts."

Dr. Jeron King Criswell, known merely by his last name, is one of the most widely quoted prophets of our time, having predicted such things as the assassinations of John Kennedy, Martin Luther King, and Robert Kennedy. He also "scored" with the predictions that America would be the first to set foot on the moon and that Lyndon Johnson would not seek re-election. He has also appeared on the Merv Griffin show.

He is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and was a pre-med student at Columbia University. His syndicated columns appear in many papers around the country and he is currently involved in the production of television and radio programs. He also has two books to his credit: "Criswell Predicts to the Year

2,000" and "Criswell Predicts Your Next Ten Years."

Criswell makes no claim to be a prophet or extraordinarily gifted psychic. "My predictions are not written to win me literary attention," he contends. "I am not sure I know what all of them mean. Some are frighteningly explicit . . . others too vague or symbolic. All are based on conscious or subconscious realizations that come from where I do not know."

Even if he doesn't know where his gifts come from, millions of Americans are becoming more and more convinced that his predictions have alarming accuracy. Many leading historians and newspaper critics have his gift of prediction with that of Nostradamus in the 1500's and Edgar Cayce of the 1900's.

Other topics that he will cover include secret predictions of Nostradamus, your next ten years, and "to the year 2,000." He is a top draw wherever he goes and always makes it a point to meet each individual in the audience after the performance.

Editorial

"Nixon's the one"

It comes to the people on Tuesday, November 7, to select their leaders for many different offices for this insuing term. The staff of the COMMUTER have met with the thought in mind of deciding who to support in this election with this editorial. The reasons for the following selections are many and varied, therefore, the reasons are not listed due to lack of space. When reviewing this list, keep in mind that these names would not be listed without what the staff considers strong, justifiable reasoning behind these decisions.

NATIONAL

U.S. President — Richard M. Nixon
 U.S. V.P. — Spiro T. Agnew
 U.S. Senator — Mark O. Hatfield
 Rep. — Congress
 1st District — Wendell Wyatt
 Rep. — Congress
 4th District — Charles Porter

STATE

Secretary of State — Clay Myers
 State Treasurer — Craig Berkman
 Attorney General — R. P. (Joe) Smith

These are the people the COMMUTER has decided to support for this election. The only decision that we feel could justifiably be challenged is State Treasurer and for that reason it might have been a good idea to remain undecided. We do not intend to defend that particular decision. But with the others we are making our commitments quite firmly and unswervingly.

Skip Collins and the COMMUTER staff.

The great debate

I love presidential election time. What I enjoy most is the exciting, clear, and informative speeches given throughout the campaign by the candidates. Although this year we haven't had any real debates between the presidential candidates, I can imagine what one would sound like:

"Good evening, Ladies and Gentlemen. I am happy to be here as moderator for the last (and first) public debate of this 1972 election season. We are fortunate to have here with us the two prime contenders for that all important spot — have you guessed it? — The Pres-i-den-cy! Our two candidates, Mr. McCrumb and Mr. Sixon are here to give us a few last minute remarks regarding their views. First, we will have President Tricky Sixon with his opening remarks. Mr. Sixon —"

"My fellow Americans. Due to the triad of remarkably complex situations with which we seem to be enveloping ourselves at this time, I will have my Secretary of Defense, Mr. Lard, here, perform my opening remarks. Mr. Lard . . . uh, Mr. Lard . . . Drat! I guess he has left. I thought I had made myself perfectly clear . . ."

"Thank you Mr. President. And now, Senator McCrumb, we would like your opening remarks."

"Friends and fellow grass-roots Americans, I would like, at this time, to challenge my opponent on the issue of the bugs in the Democratic headquarters."

Mr. Sixon perks up. "I beg your pardon. I certainly did not participate in any such activity. And to further this observation, I have had a high level secret conference on the aforementioned affair and we have come to the irreconcilable conclusion that those bugs crawled in there all by themselves!"

McCrumb smiles the same knowing smile which he's been smiling all along and continues, "I have another bone to pick with my opponent. I say that the work begins at home. So what if we dominate the earth? Big deal! What happens to the equality of the tax minorities, and the problems of social pressure, and national unemployment, and group insurance, and apple pie and Mother? That's what I and the American people want to know!" McCrumb points an accusing finger at Sixon.

"Thank you, Mr. McCrumb. And now, Mr. Sixon, we would like your views on that issue."

Mr. Sixon gets up hurriedly and heads toward the door. "Pardon me, fellow Americans. I have a pressing engagement at this time. Any further remarks will be answered by my Press Secretary, here. Good-night and God bless you every one."

A plea for Stockton

To the Editor:

This letter is written to urge a vote for Don Stockton for State Representative from District 37.

His experience on various school boards has prepared him for the toughest task of this next legislature — that of properly funding public schools, yet providing property tax relief.

He has a vast amount of energy, and answers to no special interest groups, both of which will serve the voters well.

Please consider voting for Don Stockton for State Representative on November 7.

Hay Baling

Who? Me?

How many bales per day do you produce to bale?

Dare you experiment?

Persuade a dear, dear, friend to sneak (sneak — unbeknownst to you) into your office, classroom, or the Commons environment with a tape recorder — but turned on. Listen to yourself.

How many words did you use that were thoughts, ideas, orignations, expansion of learning?

Are we a learning institution, or a hay baling concern?

Now I ask you?

Hay for the most part is a filler, a fodder, a roughage, having little value except as a filler, a fodder, a roughage.

Clothing

Clothing — necessary for warmth, protection from weather, sometimes for adornment, keeping up over and out. What else?

As Polonius spoke to his son Laertes upon his departure for Paris, (Hamlet Scene III) . . . Costly thy habit as thy purse can buy, But not expressed in fancy; Rich, not gaudy, For the apparel oft proclaims the man.

What's he saying? He's pleading for a balanced being in all areas, against a plumaged covering, creating an imbalanced personality. Clothing can no more cover imperfection than can a lack of it hide or obscure the real, sincere and true being.

Calendar of events

MEANING IN STRUGGLE

by
Malcolm Boyd

Ordained to the ministry of the Episcopal Church in 1955, Malcolm Boyd served as chaplain at Colorado State University from 1959 to 1961, and Wayne State University from 1961 to 1965. In 1965, he became the national field representative of the Episcopal Society for Cultural and Racial Unity, and since 1968 he has been resident fellow at Calhoun College of Yale University. Former president of the T.V. Producers Association and a motion picture producer for the Christian Century, Mr. Boyd has written such books as "Crisis in Communication" (1957), "Are You Running with Me, Jesus?" (1968), "Free to Live, Free to Die" (1969), "As I Live and Breathe" (1969).

On a midwestern campus recently a white male student told me: "I have no sense at all of who I really am. What is my identity? Blacks are together. Now women are defining their reality. But I feel lost."

Mina Simone sang "To Be Young, Gifted, and Black" to black students in Atlanta. The moment burst with exuberance, creative energy and hope. I wonder what can be sung, said, or exemplified by many other students who are momentarily trapped in frustration and even despair. "We Are Ourselves, Gifted, and Human" might be a start.

I share fully in the personal anxiety that inevitably accompanies this moment in history with its political action and reaction, its essential dilemmas and radical spiritual questioning. These are a few guidelines to my present philosophy of life.

I want to be an organic part of social responsibility and community building. Yet I also want to nurture my individuality — even at the risk of being considered eccentric.

I want to weigh myself in the scales of liberation movements — black, Native American, Women, Gay, Chicano and others — and helpfully come up with human identity. Yet I do not want to live in a melting pot that denies deep and honest differences between people.

I want to be sufficiently sober and serious about the overwhelming questions of this day, this age: poverty, emptiness, ecology, ethnicity, racism, loneliness in a mass, war. Yet I do not want to lose my sense of humor, capacity for sheer abandon and fun, awareness of the absurd as a quality of life.

I want to nurture protest and lend fire to dissent. Without them democracy perishes. Yet I want to avoid slipping into paranoia, destruction of its own sake, and the morbid malaise of hopelessness. I want to build an intellectual spirit interlaced by commitment and capable of passion. Yet I do not want to succumb to the elegance of mere fashion by denigrating authentic tradition, academic discipline and the goal of objectivity.

I want to respond to ideas instead of charismatic personalities whose programmed chic (for whatever cause) is the product of exploitation.

I want to believe sincerely in the aspects of faith that undergird life, yet also want to resist narrow chauvinism and self-teous fanaticism that claims mine is the "only" faith or ideology, life-style or system. I want to fight the conviction that "I" (people who share my views and I) are "good guys" versus "bad guys" (people who hold different views).

I want to be a loyal and dependable (therefore always critical) member of movements and organizations to which I belong, yet do not want to forget that moral ambiguities mark all movements and institutions (including mine).

I want to participate in community with persons who share my views, yet do not want to lose the capacity for listening to totally different views and engaging in communication with people who are different from them.

I want to be outspoken against the maladies and sins of my society, nation and institutions, yet do not want to become merely a shrill crier of doom who offers no alternatives, decent hope for the future, or positive approaches to hard and complex tasks.

It is therefore obvious that I choose to live in creative tension. I do not want to shut other people out of my life, avoid shattering experiences and relationships, or reject the growth processes of becoming fully human. The alternative is, I believe, dehumanization.

Success and failure and meaningless terms to me. The meaning of life I find in its struggle.

Malcolm Boyd

'Runners bow again, 24-0

In their next to the last game of the season the Roadrunners ran into some bad luck. This bad luck may have been the reason for their defeat of 24-0 against Larry's Foster Tavern. The Roadrunners bad luck consisted of two unfortunate accidents. The first accident was a knee injury received by one man during a play. He stayed in the game with a bad limp. The second accident was a dislocated finger which a man received trying to catch a pass. He was out of the game after that. Due to these injuries, the Roadrunners were put to a complete disadvantage. Without the injuries, the Roadrunners would have had a much better chance to win the game.

Balance will be strength of 'Runner's cage team

The college football season is in its last month of regular season play around the country and that turns one's thoughts to basketball. The coaches are busy shaping their teams up for the season opener, even daring to dream about winning the conference title.

Coach Verlund Kimpton's Roadrunners too are hopeful of a conference title and there is plenty of talent on the squad to make that a real possibility.

Coming off of a 21-8 season, good enough for a third place tie in the Oregon Community College Athletic Association, the 'Runners figure to be one better teams in the league once again this year. Lane, Central Oregon, and Southwest Oregon community colleges also fall into that category.

Strong points? Depth, size, speed, and shooting and to put that in one word — balance. "We have good balance through our first ten or eleven players," said Kimpton.

Jim Davidson, a 6'2" sophomore, figures to be one of the individual brightspots. Davidson was second in the league last year with a 21.0 average. Craig Martin, the tallest man on the squad at 6'10", also can be counted on offensively as he averaged 19 per game last year at Umpqua Community College. With his towering height, he will definitely be a threat on the boards, also.

Mark Peterson, Randy Bishop, Ken Dorsey, Dave Heins, Brad Fletcher, Craig Martin, and Glen Hubert were also cited by Kimpton as players who could expect to see lots of action.

The season opens for the 'Runners December 1 against the OSU junior varsity in Corvallis. A schedule will be printed later in the COMMUTER as well as player and close-ups.

Display's on

The art display that has been in the Center Commons is the work of several Oregon College of Education faculty members and will remain in the Center until November 30th.

The works range from stone-ware to acrylic drawings and velour. Artists include Ruth Pearson Culbertson, Douglas Campbell Smith, Peter Stone and many others.

The exhibition is brought to Albany by the Statewide Services Division of the Museum of Art at the University of Oregon. It is being coordinated by Dr. Robert Miller, LBCC's Director of Student Activities.

CAMPUS WHEELS

Nate Kropf has the "Machine." Not the "Time Machine" but a street "Machine." The "Machine" is a beautiful, specially packaged 1970 American Motors' "Rebel."

It has been painted a metallic grey with a black vinyl top. Mounted on the hood is air induction and Tac. Under the hood is a hefty A.M. 390 with four barrel carburation, 3/4 race cam and factory headers. The "Machine's" 390 puts out 340 h.p. The "Machine" has specially high geared three speed automatic transmission. In the rear there is a 354 po a-traction.

Nate's "Machine" has sharp looking Sport Wheels with J-70 mounted on the back and E-6 mounted in the front. Also the "Machine" is specially equipped with rally suspension.

The interior is all done in black button tuck with bucket seats.
