Dreams for our children: How the world could be

The Garden Room

*My name is Janelle Peck and my daughter is three and one half. Hopefully by the year this is read I hope the pollution of the earth is under control and the drugs and violence has come to a complete stop! Also due to our advancing technology, hope that there will be more cures for such illnesses like cancer, AIDS ect. I also hope the college isn't falling apart 25 years from the date of this letter, HA HA. Janelle Helen Peck Amanda Reachelle Peck

*I would like to see: a financially stable society, an accepting society (NO RACISM), less weapons and more space exploration, (maybe trips to the moon or other planets.) A woman president and less emphasis on physical looks.

*A world full of peace, no threats given by us or received from others. Totally blind to people's difference- A world of acceptance - no matter how you look or what color your skin is or what you offer- you are accepted. A world where walls are not built to keep people out or in.

*I would like the world to be free from nuclear weapons, racism, discrimination and pollution. I would like it to be a world where no child would ever know first hand what it's like to be a victim of a crime, in other words - crimes on children would be something that only happened "back in the olden days."

*I would like to see a world of equality for all colors, sexes... and ideas. A world with more concern for people and the planet than the almighty dollar. A world where the abnormal is accepted for the actual normal that it represents. A world with driverless cars for the freeways. 3-D television would be really cool too.

*I would like to see a world that is full of respect. Respect for ourselves, that we may live free of harmful addictions and habits. Respect for others, that we may live together peacefully. Respect for living plants and animals, that we may learn to nurture and love unconditionally. Respect for our environment, that we may live in harmony with our Earth, not destroying it in our haste and waste.

*A world full of harmony. Where everyone is living peacefully with each other. A world in which my daughter can walk out her door and feel safe about. I would also like to see it as a place everyone got along with each other no matter what their race or color is.

*In 25 years from now the date will be October 22, 2017. I hope that people around the world are at world peace. I hope that discrimination will be a word in the past. I hope that my child will be able to walk the streets without being scared. I hope that now people have finally figured out to live with one another in peace. To really know how to love the neighbor and most important to love themselves.

*In 25 years I would like to see an environmentally conscious world. A world in which companies must make moral decisions for the products they want to create. " Will this product pollute, damage or hurt the consumer?" I want a political system that is truly run by the people and not by major corporations and special interest groups. I want a world composed of people that not only have intellect, but the wisdom needed to live together peacefully. More people will have a spiritual nature (not religious for man made religions have divided us too often,) but a sensing of who we are and our purpose in life. And with that purpose, I hope this world will be full of true love for each other.

*I hope that equality is in 25 years not just an idea but a reality. That the violence we commit on each other (the human race) is if not abolished at least a rare act. Most importantly that the people of the United States remain free to pursue happiness without government intervention.

*I want the world to be least complicated for my child. I want it to be easier to live in; for example low cost in living. Not just living but everything. I know the college today is cheaper than it will be in the future. I want the world to be safe for my daughter. I want the world to know about the deadly disease "Aids." I want the world to be more friendly and kind.

*A world where people are more environmentally aware. Where they can swim in clean water and walk on clean streets. a world where you can walk at night or alone and not fear being assaulted. Where people care more about people. Less materialistic. Less competitive.

*A world where there are no rich or poor people. A world with equality. A world where everyone is accepted: Black and white, women and men, homosexuals and heterosexuals, young and old. A world of freedom. A world where the environment is valued and cared for. An ecologically sound world. A world where we use problem solving methods based on communication not violence. A world at peace. Mark Weiss
